

IS ONLINE LEARNING FOR YOU? A SELF-SURVEY

2010

TECHNOLOGY TOLERANCE BRAIN THEORY LEARNING YOU INTELLIGENT YOU WILLING YOU
ABOUT YOU

What is your technology tolerance?

Is online learning right for you? If you answer, "yes" to the following ten (10) questions, you might want to consider taking an online learning course.

- Do you like to work independently? Do you get energized by reading, studying and thinking?
- Will you schedule a regular time, place and days to study on your own throughout the course?
- Are you willing to dedicate a minimum of 10-12 hours per week (for each course) to participate fully? Are you willing to be online daily if you are taking a course?
- Do you feel that your learning is your own responsibility?
- Will you contact your instructor or technical support to seek out answers when you have questions?
- Will you contact your instructor or advisor when you feel overwhelmed with course work?
- Do you have adequate access to the Internet?
- Will you schedule time to attend an in-person orientation session, on-campus exams and presentations, if required?
- Can you make succeeding in your course a top priority in your busy life?
- Are you comfortable using a computer and the World Wide Web? Would you enjoy communicating with classmates, instructors and others through e-mail and the Internet?

If you have answered 'no' to more than 2 of these questions, online learning may not be the best learning solution for you. Back to Surveys

The most exciting breakthroughs of the 21st century will not occur because of technology but because of an expanding concept of what it means to be human.

John Naisbitt

Where is the knowledge we lost in the information?

T.S.Eliot

The spoken word was the first technology by which man [woman] was able to let go of his[her] environment in order to grasp it in a new way.

Marshall McLuhan

All technology should be assumed guilty until proven innocent.

David Brower

