I. Create an example of:

1. A wh-island violation involving movement of an argument (who, what)

2. A wh-island violation involving movement of adjunct (why, when, how, where)

3. A complex NP violation involving movement of an argument.

4. A complex NP violation involving movement of an adjunct.

5. A sentential Subject violation involving movement of an argument

6. A sentential Subject violation involving movement of an argument

7. An adjunct island violation involving movement of an argument

8. An adjunct island violation involving movement of an argument

II. Sentence 9 is ungrammatical because ‘herself’ does not have a local c-commanding antecedent. For some reason, sentence 10 is grammatical (according to official sources....). Suggest an explanation for how the anaphor in 10 might get fulfill Binding Principle A.

9. *Mary thinks that John likes those pictures of herself.

10. Which pictures of herself does Mary think that John likes?