General Goals of the Course

The main goal is two-fold:
(i) introduce students to the methodology of modern linguistics
(ii) teach analytic reasoning via examination of linguistic data

Thus, you will be taught:

► A basic introduction to some of the main results and ideas of modern linguistics
► The scientific reasoning behind them, so that you can apply that reasoning to novel cases, both in language and in other spheres of life.

Given the focus on formal reasoning, the course satisfies the ‘R2’ general education requirement.
